St. Valentine School Students Successfully Compete at PJAS Competition

Seven students from St. Valentine School recently competed in the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science Seventy-Fifth Annual Region 7 Meeting on February 7 at Keystone Oaks High School. The event involved almost 400 students from 50 elementary and middle schools in the Pittsburgh area. Four St. Valentine students earned first place awards – Brennan Adams, Tom Ernst, Andrew Sigg, and Sarah Wray – with Sarah also earning a perfect score. Three others – Emily Nedzesky, Natalie Piaggese, and Julia Rodaitis – won second place awards. The four first place students now advance to the state competition which takes place at Penn State University in May.
